Chapter 6 – Malicious Software = Malware

CYBER-SAFETY THREATS

First, let's talk about some common cyber-safety threats and the problems they can cause . . .

Viruses Viruses infect computers through email attachments and file sharing. They delete files, attack other computers, and make your computer run slowly. One infected computer can cause problems for all computers on a network.	Hackers Hackers are people who "trespass" into your computer from a remote location. They may use your computer to send spam or viruses, host a Web site, or do other activities that cause computer malfunctions.
Identity Thieves People who obtain unauthorized access to your personal information, such as Social Security and financial account numbers. They then use this information to commit crimes such as fraud or theft.	Spyware Spyware is software that "piggybacks" on programs you download, gathers information about your online habits, and transmits personal information without your knowledge. It may also cause a wide range of other computer malfunctions.
